ANNEX

The Unconditional Basic Income does not replace the welfare state but does complete and transform the same from a compensatory into an emancipatory welfare state.

The emancipatory 'Unconditional Basic Income' is defined by the following four criteria: universal¹, individual², unconditional³, high enough to ensure an existence in dignity and participation in society.

As a result of current employment patterns and inadequate basic income systems respectively supplementary benefits systems we regard the introduction of the Unconditional Basic Income essential in order to guarantee fundamental rights, especially a life in dignity, as set forth in the Charta of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, if the Charta shall have relevance.

Above all the UBI is meant to abolish poverty and grants more freedom to each individual, to determine his or her own lives, and strengthens the participation of all in society.

The UBI is meant to avoid social splitting, debates based on envy and abuse and their consequences, as well as superfluous costly, repressive and exclusive controlling and inspection bureaucracy. As transfer free of discrimination and stigmatization the UBI eliminates hidden poverty.

The UBI brings about social freedom, strengthens the identification of citizens with the European Union and ensures their political rights. It supports pushing through fundamental rights.

The introduction of the UBI and possible introductory steps are within the respective areas of responsibility of the members of the European Union.

¹ Universal: In principle every person irrespective of age, descent, place of residence, profession etc. will be able to and should receive this allocation. Herewith a European wide guaranteed unconditional basic income is claimed.

² Individual: Every woman, every man, every child has an individual right to basic income. The latter shall not be based on their circumstances of income or property, on their status of family membership or cohabitation. This is the only way of ensuring that no personal control is exercised of guaranteeing freedom for individual decisions.

³ Unconditional: We regard basic income as a right of the citizen which shall not depend on any preconditions, whether an obligation to work, an activity in the public interest, a duty to behave according to correct gender roles or limits on income or property.

⁴ High enough: The amount available should enable a way of life which is a modest living which still meets society's social and cultural standards in the country concerned. It should prevent material poverty and provide the opportunity to participate in society. This means that the net income should at a minimum be at the poverty-risk level according to EU standards, which corresponds to 60% of the so-called national median net equivalent income. Especially in countries with low mass income and therefore low median income an equal reference value (e.g. basket of goods) should be used to determine the amount of the basic income, to guarantee a life in dignity, secured livelihood and participation in society.

Treaty on European Union (TEU) "Konsolidierte Fassung des Vertrages über die Europäische Union und des Vertrages über die Arbeitsweise der Europäischen Union" 2010/C83/01 (30. März 2010)
CONSOLIDATED TREATIES CHARTER OF FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS MARCH 2010

Article 2

The Union is founded on the values of respect for human dignity, freedom, democracy, equality, the rule of law and respect for human rights, including the rights of persons belonging to minorities. These values are common to the Member States in a society in which pluralism, non-discrimination, tolerance, justice, solidarity and equality between women and men prevail.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

The UBI by its criteria realizes all values listed above. It means securing of financial existence and the possibility to participate in society without conditions – combined with equality of all individuals.

Article 3

3. The Union shall establish an internal market. It shall work for the sustainable development of Europe based on balanced economic growth and price stability, a highly competitive social market economy, aiming at full employment and social progress, and a high level of protection and improvement of the quality of the environment. It shall promote scientific and technological advance.

It shall combat social exclusion and discrimination, and shall promote social justice and protection, equality between women and men, solidarity between generations and protection of the rights of the child.

It shall promote economic, social and territorial cohesion, and solidarity among Member States.

It shall respect its rich cultural and linguistic diversity, and shall ensure that Europe's cultural heritage is safeguarded and enhanced.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

When an Unconditional Basic Income which will support reduction and redistribution of working hours exists, a new form of full employment is possible. The Unconditional Basic Income combats social exclusion and discrimination, also these, which are given by the existing Basic-/Minimum Security systems. We believe that there is a need for a legal rights act of the EU for an Unconditional Basic Income to implement the goals of the EU as to attain full employment, combat social exclusion and discrimination and support social justice and social protection (Art.3 Para 3 TEU).

Also in order to support the rights of children, solidarity between generations and between Member States, we take the initiative and ask the EU-Commission to present a legal rights act for an Unconditional Basic Income within the framework of its authorization in the area of social policy (Art. 151 ff TFEU) preserving the right of the Member States.

Article 5

(3) The Union may take initiatives to ensure coordination of Member States' social policies.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

The social policies of the Member States can be coordinated in order to combat social dumping. The common measure for all would be the introduction of the Unconditional Basic Income according to the four defined criteria. The competence for the adaptation of the existing national social system to the Unconditional Basic Income is up to the Member States.

Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU)

Article 151

The Union and the Member States, having in mind fundamental social rights such as those set out in the European Social Charter signed at Turin on 18 October 1961 and in the 1989 Community Charter of the Fundamental Social Rights of Workers, shall have as their objectives the promotion of employment, improved living and working conditions, so as to make possible their harmonisation while the improvement is being maintained, proper social protection, dialogue between management and labour, the development of human resources with a view to lasting high employment and the combating of exclusion.

To this end the Union and the Member States shall implement measures which take account of the diverse forms of national practices, in particular in the field of contractual relations, and the need to maintain the competitiveness of the Union's economy.

They believe that such a development will ensue not only from the functioning of the internal market, which will favour the harmonisation of social systems, but also from the procedures provided for in the Treaties and from the approximation of provisions laid down by law, regulation or administrative action.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

When an Unconditional Basic Income which will support reduction and redistribution of working hours exists, a new form of full employment is possible. In addition it strengthens the power of negotiation for employees concerning improvement of working and living conditions. The potential of capacity of workers can be developed by more free choice of workplaces due to the Unconditional Basic Income. The Unconditional Basic Income offers social security, free of discrimination and stigmatisation. The concrete implementation of the Unconditional Basic Income lies in the hands of the Member States taking into account the national practices.

The mentioned „European Social Charter“ of 1961 was revised in 1999. Quote of Article 30:

„Article 30 - The right to protection against poverty and social exclusion

With a view to ensuring the effective exercise of the right to protection against poverty and social exclusion, the Parties undertake:

- a. to take measures within the framework of an overall and co-ordinated approach to promote the effective access of persons who live or risk living in a situation of social exclusion or poverty, as well as their families, to, in particular, employment, housing, training, education, culture and social and medical assistance;
- b. to review these measures with a view to their adaptation if necessary.”

Article 153

1. With a view to achieving the objectives of Article 151, the Union shall support and complement the activities of the Member States in the following fields:

(c) social security and social protection of workers;

(j) the combating of social exclusion;

(k) the modernisation of social protection systems without prejudice to point (c).

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

The Unconditional Basic Income would be an important measure in order to achieve the goals of the Social Charta, Article 30 a.,

- over and above compensatory safeguarding of survival offered by existing Basic-/Minimum Security systems – giving real access to social and cultural participation in society. The TEU, Article 3 (3) again confirms these goals.

Concerning the “adaptation of measures” according Article 151/Social Charta Article 30 b. the Unconditional Basic Income does not protect only a part of society against poverty and social exclusion, but establishes social cohesion between all individuals instead – as up to now - of reinforcing respectively deepening the constantly increasing gap between poor and rich and instead of splitting society by unilateral sums of money. Also in this respect the Unconditional Basic Income is the far better alternative to considered respectively already existing Basic-/Minimum Security systems. It would be a necessary part of the modernisation (Article 153) in regard to social protection systems. With a proposal for a legal rights act the Commission would support the assistant and supplementary function of the Union concerning the activities of the Member States in the fields mentioned above.

Charta of Fundamental Rights of the European Union

Article 1

Human dignity Human dignity is inviolable.

It must be respected and protected.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

The dignity of the individual does include the possibility to live in freedom and responsibility within society. The UBI grants freedom to each individual and a life in responsibility in abolishing existential and administrative constraints as well as exclusion from social life.

Article 2

Right to life (1)

Everyone has the right to life.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

That human right is undisputed. Within our present economic system life depends on securing livelihood through funds. Of course you could also secure existence with vouchers. Drawers/Purchasers of such vouchers would be discriminated against individuals who freely can decide over the use of their financial funds out of different sources of financial income. The UBI (legal right) as sum of money (ensuring an existence in dignity and participation in society) guarantees the fulfilment of the right for a life of justice, free of discrimination.

Article 5

Prohibition of slavery and forced labour

(2) No one shall be required to perform forced or compulsory labour.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

Hard labour according to International Labour Organisation: ‚Every kind of labour or service which is asked from a person in making it a punishable offence and for which the person is not available voluntarily.‘ (IAO, Übereinkommen über Zwangs- oder Pflichtarbeit, 1930, Nr. 29). UBI abolishes making something a punishable offence in regards to cuts respectively withdrawal of benefits, which are used within many basic income systems and supplementary benefit systems.

Article 6

Right to liberty and security

Everyone has the right to liberty and security of person.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

The UBI supports freedom in choice of personal livelihood, arrangement of social relations and entering social and economical cooperation. Freedom implicates taking responsibility in solidarity.

At the same time UBI best guarantees physical invulnerability protecting besides the respective social insurances and social services against existential risks like illness and loss of work place.

Article 8

Protection of personal data

(1) Everyone has the right to the protection of personal data concerning him or her.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

As UBI in contrast to basic income systems and supplementary benefit systems does only need a few personal data for the payment of the transfer, the protection of personal data is given at its best. In addition the social administrative controlling of life circumstances up into private sphere, like e.g. with basic income systems, will be abolished by UBI.

Article 15

Freedom to choose an occupation and right to engage in work

1. Everyone has the right to engage in work and to pursue a freely chosen or accepted occupation.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

UBI makes it easier to practise a free chosen or accepted occupation, as it will eliminate existential need that restricts free choice of occupation. In addition basic income abolishes administrative constraints of many basic income systems and supplementary benefit systems to accept a non-freely chosen work.

Article 34

Social security and social assistance

(1) The Union recognises and respects the entitlement to social security benefits and social services providing protection in cases such as maternity, illness, industrial accidents, dependency or old age, and in the case of loss of employment, in accordance with the rules laid down by Union law and national laws and practices.

(2) Everyone residing and moving legally within the European Union is entitled to social security benefits and social advantages in accordance with Union law and national laws and practices.

(3) In order to combat social exclusion and poverty, the Union recognises and respects the right to social and housing assistance so as to ensure a decent existence for all those who lack sufficient resources, in accordance with the rules laid down by Union law and national laws and practices.

Reasons for Unconditional Basic Income:

Unconditional Basic Income best gives the fundamental right for social security and social support in addition to the respective social insurances and social services, as everybody will receive it and therefore no one will be excluded or discriminated. On the other hand existing Basic-/Minimum Security systems cause additional exclusion from entitled benefits, because of its stigmatising character. The consequence is non-demand in multiple cases in spite of justified legal right.
